

Sinclair Broadcast Group, the largest owner of TV stations in America, is ordering its 24 local stations to broadcast an anti-Kerry documentary two weeks before the election. This is a violation of the fairness doctrine and constitutes an illegal contribution to the Bush campaign.

I urge the FCC to take steps to stopping Sinclair from using the public airwaves to advance their corporate agenda in a presidential election.

This is symptomatic of a larger issue: The dangers of the concentration of media power. I urge the FCC to reverse course and reinstate the previous limits on media ownership.
